Generational Ethics in the Workplace

Managing generational diversity in today's workplace

Presented by: Richard Seaman
Founder of Beacon Leadership Development

Wednesday, January 20, 2016

7:30 a.m. (Networking & Breakfast) – 8:00 a.m. (Speaker)

Davis Applied Technology College
Northfront Business Resource Center
450 S. Simmons Way • Kaysville, Utah

PRESENTER - Richard Seaman is the founder of Beacon Leadership Development and is a certified executive coach and nationally known keynote speaker. He has assessed, coached and trained nationally and internationally. His clients include BMW, Federal Aviation Administration, Maritz Travel, Department of Defense, Hill Air Force Base, Albion Minerals, Sceptre Management, ECI, Lawn Butler and Utah Applied Technology Colleges.

With over 34 years of diverse federal government experience and practical, hands-on management consulting experience, his goal is to challenge every individual to be a courageous leader wherever they are in life – both personally and professionally. Richard's unique methods prepare managers to act and react to whatever challenge is presented, while tailoring the training/coaching to the specific needs of their organization.

His entertaining, interactive presentation style are key factors to better comprehension and retention of philosophical and practical processes you will be able to immediately use. He is a 22 year resident of Kaysville.
